"a collection of national significance"

Te Papa Tongarewa

The Okains Bay Museum came about as a result of the passion, tireless energy and generosity of its founder, the late Murray Thacker (1933 – 2017). A long term resident and descendant of some of the earliest Pākehā settlers in Okains Bay, Murray gifted his extensive private collection into public ownership, creating the Museum in 1977.

Since then, the Museum has grown to become a significant cultural and educational attraction that draws visitors from throughout Aotearoa and the world.
